

ABSTRACT

Disclosed is a method of stabilising the native state of a polypeptide, the method comprising exposing the polypeptide to a stabilising molecule capable of binding to the polypeptide at a site which at least partially overlaps a functional site in its native state.